Rheumatic Pains

"I have suffered terribly with rheumatism. I took Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and they gave me great relief. I have spells of terrible pains in my ribs, and in the small of my back, and the Anti-Pain Pills help me right away. I am now well of the rheumatism and think Anti-Pain Pills done me more good than all the other medicines. I first heard of them through the following circumstance that happened at our home two years ago. A friend, Mrs. Brown, of Orion, Mich., came to visit us. She had not been able to dress herself or comb her own hair for months. A friend of ours came in and seeing her suffering offered her some Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. She laughed at the idea of relief from such a source after doctoring for so long, but took one of the tablets with the remark that it would at least do her no harm. She took another that evening, and the next morning she was so elated that she went to the druggist's and got a package and took them home with her. Recently she was here again, and told us that she continued taking the pills, and that one box cured her, and she has not had a symptom of rheumatism since."

Cosy Homes.

The discovery of a new wick principle—so effective and yet so simple that it is a wonder no one thought of it before—has so revolutionized the manufacture of oil heaters and lamps that explosions, smoke and smell, caused by imperfect wick arrangement, may safely be regarded as things of the past.

This new wick attachment is to be found on the Perfection oil heater. Interesting tests show that, although the heater gives intense heat, the wick cannot be turned too high or too low—absolute safety thus being assured. One other feature which is worthy of mention is the smokeless device which prevents all smoke and odor. The portability of the heater also commends it for general household use. Heater is very light and can be easily carried about. Its simple operation, usefulness in heating water and warming cold rooms make it a most handy and useful article in any home. This heater is so far superior to other oil heaters and of such fair price that its universal adoption is but a matter of time.

The Rayo lamp, which is made by the manufacturers of the Perfection oil heater, is without doubt the best lamp for all-around household use. It is equipped with the latest improved burner, and gives a bright, steady light at small cost. Suitable for any room, whether library, dining room, parlor or bedroom. The Perfection oil heater and the Rayo lamp form a combination that for real home comfort cannot be equalled. When consideration is taken of the simple operation of both heater and lamp, their absolute safety, the intense heat generated by the one, and the bright and steady light given by the other—all without smoke or smell—their value in any home, large or small, can be somewhat appreciated. Sold by all good dealers.

BLANCHING CELERY.

Boards Preferred to Soil—A Plan That Works Well.

It is better to blanch celery with boards than to bank with dirt, as dirt may cause it to rot. When hoeing celery be careful not to get any soil between the stems of the plants. When celery is about twelve inches high blanching boards are set up so that the two rows that are twelve inches apart are between the boards, thus boarding the two rows together and saving one-half the boards that are generally used when it is boarded in single rows.

The boards, which are from sixteen to eighteen inches wide, are kept well apart by driving stakes on either side, also by placing notched boards over the top, as shown in Fig. 1, until the plants have grown a few inches above them, when the boards are crowded together, thus making a dark place for the celery to blanch in.

The principle of blanching is growing in the dark. The boards must be kept well apart, for if the wet leaves of celery are not sufficiently exposed to the sun to dry them they will rot and the plant will cease to grow. It will continue to grow while leaves are exposed to sun and air. After boarding up, celery begins to blanch, and when boards are crowded close together at the top (Fig. 2) the blanching is completed in a few days. Celery will not keep long after it is blanching; therefore board up a little at a time. Some of the Golden Self Blanching can be put in the cellar without blanching for full use.

After the celery is boarded up place a mulch of manure in the eighteen inch space and keep irrigated, if possible, until the celery is ready to use. Mulching not only retains moisture, but keeps the ground from baking, and the water running through the manure dissolves portions of it, which in the water are carried to the roots of the plants in a form that is available for food. Celery sometimes becomes stringy or has hollow stalks because of growing too slowly or lack of potash or phosphoric acid.

Winter celery is not boarded up. Cultivate until plants are six or eight inches high, then mulch between rows, and plants will not need any more care except to be irrigated during dry weather. In time to escape hard frost or freezing, the plants should be taken up with a spade fork, leaving as much dirt as possible on the roots, and packed in the cellar on the cellar bottom. Place the first row next to the wall.

FIG. 2.—BOARDS DRAWN UP AT THE TOP.

Pressing the soil firmly over the roots, and water, being careful not to wet the plants; then another row of plants, etc., having plenty of soil to cover nicely the roots of the last row; place a board between it and between every third or fourth row. Cover to darken and blanch as wanted, or place soil in the bottom of the boxes and pack plants in them instead of on the cellar bottom, concludes a New York woman in the Ohio Farmer. Keep the roots moist, being careful not to wet the plants, as it would cause them to rot.

Trouble in Timothy Meadows.

An insect commonly known as the bill bug breeds in the bulbous root of timothy grass in meadows of long standing, sometimes in sufficient numbers to kill out the larger portion of it. The pest develops in the fall and remains in the field over winter to begin operations as usual the following spring. Now, if the infested field were to be plowed late in summer or early in fall the insect would probably abandon it, or if not then certainly in the spring, as it could neither feed nor breed there, but if, as is frequently the case, plowing is left until spring and corn is planted soon afterward, the insects transfer their attention to the corn, frequently killing the plants outright and in other cases causing what is generally known as "frenching."

Melons For Christmas.

If when cutting corn you will place in one of your largest shocks about a dozen of your choicest watermelons, at Christmas, when the snow is on the ground and the frost is on the pane, you can sit by the roaring fire and eat one of your melons, which has kept all that time in the shock of corn—Farm Journal.

Peanuts In Europe.

Peanuts grow in large quantities on the northwest coast of Africa, but are known there as ground nuts. They are dug up by the natives and bartered with the European traders for merchandise, tobacco, etc., at many places on the Gambia river and afterward shipped in steamer loads to European ports, principally to Marseilles.

The Most Awful Accident.

The most awful accident in history was the fall of a Roman amphitheater in the time of Tiberius. Fifty thousand people were crushed.
